Slaven's Effervescent California Fruit Salt

Prepared from sound, ripe fruit, by an experienced analytical chemist, who has spent years in experimenting on its preparation. It is manufactured by a special process known only to the proprietor. This preparation is a safe, simple and effective medicine for regulating the action of the stomach, liver and kidneys. It is most particularly recommended for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Headache, Heartburn, Acidity of the Stomach, Habitual Constipation, Nausea, Sea Sickness, Kidney and Liver troubles, Over-indulgence either in eating or drinking, etc. As a purifier of the blood in all Scrofulous Diseases, it has no equal. It removes all eruptions from the skin and has a cooling and invigorating effect on the system. The FRUIT SALT is entirely different from any of the effervescent Salts or Sedlitz preparations in the market, being manufactured from Fruit. For sale by ap28-ly Oshorn & Soemmer.

A man came into the editor's room with a large roll of manuscript under his arm and said very politely, "I have a trifle here about the beautiful sunset yesterday, which was dashed off by a friend of mine, which I would like inserted if you have room." "Plenty of room. Insert it yourself," replied the editor, gently pushing the waste-paper basket towards him.

A Pittsburgh man has invented a cannon that will "hit a barn door five miles away." Wouldn't it be less expensive to have a smaller cannon, and haul it up within fifty yards of the barn door? or carry the barn door within fifty yards of the cannon? We don't suppose the Pittsburgh man ever thought of that.

THE LEGAL VIEW.

COUNTY ATTORNEY RANKIN'S OFFICIAL OPINION. HE THINKS NORTON'S BONDSMEN ARE LIABLE FOR THE CERTIFICATES.

Boyd not Legally Liable, Although he was Guilty of Gross Carelessness and Neglect of the County's Interests.

OFFICE OF THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF WASHOE COUNTY, RENO, NEV., Sep. 5.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners of Washoe County, Nev., Gentlemen:—In accordance with the order of your Honorable Board of August 1, 1891, I have the honor to submit my opinion touching the liability of parties occasioned by the present deficiency of $2,800 in the County Treasury.

Since making my report of August 1st, I have learned nothing which would lead me to believe that the facts therein stated are not correct. Summarized, they are as follows:

First: That when Norton's term of office expired and Boyd became Treasurer, in 1879, the books of the Auditor and Treasurer showed that there should have been coin in the Treasury in the sum of $27,145 36-100.

Second: That at said time there was coin in the Treasury in the sum of $22,246 36.

Third: That the difference between the amount of coin which should have been in the Treasury and that which was in fact there, to-wit: $4,900, was represented by three certificates of deposit, two being on the Reno Savings Bank, for $2,000, and $1,800 respectively, and one on the bank of D. A. Bender & Co. for $1,100.

Fourth: That Norton during his term of office was a defaulter, and that his bondsmen attempted to settle and make good his defalcation by causing the above named banks to issue their certificates of deposit, payable to Norton, Treasurer, or order, for the amount of his defalcation.

Fifth: That Norton and his bondsmen secured the banks against loss, and the banks agreed not to charge the bondsmen interest so long as they (the banks) were not called upon to pay their certificates of deposit.

Sixth: That large amounts of money were paid to Norton on these certificates, and at the expiration of his term of office they were reduced; the Reno Savings Bank certificate to $1,800 and that of D. A. Bender & Co. to $1,100.

Seventh: That the certificate for $2,000 on the Reno Savings Bank was received by Norton, either in payment for taxes, or by reason of deposit of coin in the Reno Savings Bank.

Eighth: That when Boyd became Treasurer he received from Norton the three aforesaid certificates of deposit with the effects of the Treasurer's office.

Ninth: That the D. A. Bender & Co. certificate for $1,100 was paid to Boyd, also $1,000 on the $1,800 certificate of the Reno Savings Bank, leaving an $800 certificate of the latter, issued by reason of Norton's defalcation, in the hands of and payable to Boyd, Treasurer.

Tenth: That Boyd did not collect the $2,000 and $800 certificates on the Reno Savings Bank, although they were good until June, 1890, at which date the bank failed, and the certificates then became and now are worthless.

Eleventh: That several Grand Juries reported that the Norton defalcation had been made good.

Twelfth: That the Board of Commissioners, at various times since Norton's defalcation, counted the money in the County Treasury and reported the same correct, according to the Auditor's books, when such was not the fact.

While all these facts may be material in arriving at the moral responsibility of parties, I am of the opinion that but very few of them are at all important in solving the problem of the legal liability of parties occasioned by the Treasury deficiency. It is the existence of this multitude of facts, coupled with the large number of persons who, in one way and another, have had a hand in bringing about the present state of affairs, and the length of time which has elapsed since the first illegal act was committed, which combined have served to complicate the matter until it seems almost impossible to fix the liability upon any one person. Grand Juries have investigated the Norton defalcation and reported the same "made good." County Commissioners have counted the money in the Treasury and "found the same correct." The County Treasury has changed officers, and Boyd has held the certificates for a long time, when if he had presented them they would have been paid, while three and a half years have elapsed since Norton's defalcation first became known. To show how time alone has served to cloud this matter, take, for instance, the $2,000 certificate issued by the Reno Savings Bank to Norton, in payment of taxes. Now, if that bank had failed while Norton held that certificate, I apprehend that no one would claim that Norton and his bondsmen would not have been liable, because the laws of this State specifically provide that nothing but gold and silver coin shall be received in payment of taxes (Compiled Laws, Sec. 35.) But the bank was good when Norton went out of office and Boyd received this certificate from him and held it for a year and a half while the bank was solvent, and this makes an apparent complication. It is only by a careful examination of the duties of the various Juries, Boards and persons who have participated in this matter, that we can hope to place the legal liability where it properly belongs.

The law makes it the duty of the Grand Jury "to inquire into the wilful and corrupt misconduct in office of public officers of every description within the county" (Com. Laws, Sec. 1,835), and it is undoubtedly the duty of the Grand Jury so to do. Yet, I do not suppose that it would be claimed that a failure of the Grand Jury to inquire into the affairs and condition of the County Treasury would make the Grand Jurors individually liable to the State for a defalcation of the Treasurer. Nor if having inquired, they come to an erroneous conclusion as to the condition of the Treasury. Much less that such action on the part of the Grand Jury would release the Treasurer from liability for wilful and corrupt misconduct in office, nor even from an act done not from corrupt motives, but from an ignorance of the law. The investigation of the Grand Jury into the affairs and conduct of a county officer is more particularly for the benefit of the public than the officer. He is supposed to know the condition of the affairs of his office, and it does not lie in his mouth to say: "Though I embezzled the money of the county, yet, as the Grand Jury failed to indict me, I am released from my liability to account for the embezzled funds," nor to contend: "Because the Grand Jury erroneously reported that my defalcation was 'made good,' therefore I and my bondsmen are released from civil responsibility." Such a doctrine would be monstrous in its absurdity. It would allow a Treasurer to shield himself from responsibility for a great crime behind the misconduct, oversight, ignorance or favoritism of a Grand Jury. The Grand Jury may fail to indict, and thus the defaulter may escape criminal punishment, but the Grand Jury has not the power to release him from civil liability. I, therefore, conclude that the Grand Jury, right or wrong, correct or mistaken, cuts not the slightest figure in ascertaining the liability occasioned by the deficiency in the County Treasury. Nor do I think that any act of the Board of Commissioners could in any manner effect this liability. It may be stated, as a general proposition, that the acts of officers are valid and binding only so far as they are within the power and jurisdiction conferred on them by law. The Board of Commissioners is a body of limited powers and jurisdiction. Its authority to act is specified in the statutes, and acts beyond its jurisdiction are null and void. This has been so decided many times in our own Supreme Court. The laws of Nevada give the Commissioners authority to count the money in the Treasury, but they do not give the Board power to add one cent to or take away one cent from the money actually in the Treasury. Nor do the laws give the Board authority to count as money, chips and wet-stones, and bind the county by their estimation of their value. The Board have a naked authority to count the money, and the law does not say that the count shall be binding on anyone, much less that a failure of the Board to discover a deficiency in the Treasury shall have the effect to release the Treasurer from his liability to account for all the money received by him. The counting of the money by the Commissioners is for the benefit of the public, not the Treasurer. He is the legal custodian of the county's funds, and is supposed to know how much money he has. If the Commissioners of Washoe county counted as money the certificates of deposit in question, they had no more right to do so than they would have had to count as coin, checks on the Sandwich Islands, and their acts in so doing could, in my opinion, no more bind the county in one case than the other, nor release the Treasurer from his liability to account for all the county's money received by him in his official capacity. It seems to me that an examination of the duties and legal responsibilities of the County Treasurer will show where the legal liability rests. The several provisions of the statutes which, in my judgment are applicable to this matter, are as follows:

He (the Treasurer) shall receive all moneys due and accruing to his county, and disburse the same on the proper orders issued and attested by the County Auditor. (Com. Laws, Sec. 2,981.) All taxes which may hereafter be levied, whether State, county or municipal, shall be levied, assessed and collected in U. S. gold coin and silver coin. (Com. Laws, Sec. 35.) Each County Treasurer shall keep all moneys received by virtue of his office in his own possession or in special deposit, and no one except the Treasurer or one of his deputies shall receive or pay out any money in his office. (Com. Laws, Sec. 3,197.) I am satisfied, both upon reason and from the authorities, that the Treasurer can be called upon at any time to account for all the money received by him by virtue of his office, and that when so called upon to account his account can only be satisfied by money or something which the statutes authorize him to receive as money. But it might be more satisfactory to enter into the consideration of the certificates of deposit. The two certificates of the Reno Savings Bank only will be considered for reasons which will appear further on.

These two certificates came into Norton's hands from different sources. The one for $1,800, by reason of an attempt of his bondsmen to settle his defalcation; the $2,000 certificate, in payment of taxes or for money deposited in the bank. Let them be considered in the order named, though I think the law applicable to one is largely applicable to the other. Norton embezzled money from the County Treasury. By that embezzlement there was created an indebtedness from Norton and his bondsmen to the county or State. It is not material to inquire here which. That indebtedness it was attempted to satisfy by the banks giving to Norton their certificates of deposit for the amount of it. Could it be so satisfied? Could an indebtedness to the county be satisfied by giving to the Treasurer bank certificates of deposit? Has the Treasurer legal authority to accept such satisfaction and bind the county? What is a certificate of deposit? By its terms it is an acknowledgment that a certain person has deposited in the bank a certain amount, which the bank agrees to pay upon the return of the certificate properly endorsed. In legal contemplation it is simply the promissory note of the bank issuing it. Said the Supreme Court of California in Poorman vs. Mills & Co., 35, Cal., 118, "A certificate of deposit issued by a bank or other depository to a depositor upon his paying to the former a sum of money on general or as it is sometimes called, irregular deposit, stating that the depositor has deposited that sum, payable to himself or order on demand or on return of the certificate properly endorsed, is a promissory note." This is sustained by a long line of decisions unnecessary to be here cited. I can find no authority either in the statute law of the State or in decisions made in the absence of statutes upon the subject authorizing the County Treasurer to receive the note of a bank in payment of indebtedness due the county. I therefore conclude the action of Norton in receiving the certificates in payment of the indebtedness of the county against him and his bondsmen, was without authority of law and null and void. The indebtedness still exists the same as though no certificate had been taken by the Treasurer. But suppose the certificates be considered so much money received by Norton and as a complete liquidation of the demands of the county against his bondsmen by reason of his defalcation. Then the Treasurer became liable to account to the county, and if he failed to do so his bondsmen would be liable just the same for the new delinquency as for the old defalcation. This brings me to the consideration of the other certificate, supposed to have been received by Norton in payment of taxes or as a deposit. It makes no difference in my opinion whether it was received in one way or the other. Suppose it was received in payment of taxes. The law is that a tax receiver can receive nothing but money in payment of taxes, unless the statutes specially authorize him to receive something else. (Cooley on taxes, Sec. 501.) Our statutes specially provide that the Treasurer shall receive nothing but gold and silver coin in payment of taxes. It follows, therefore, conclusively that the Treasurer could not receive the note of the bank in payment of taxes, and if he does he is liable for the amount of the taxes. But suppose the Treasurer received the $2,000 certificate by reason of a deposit in the bank. The law as above cited, provides that he shall keep all the moneys received by virtue of his office in his possession or in special deposit. What is a special deposit? "A special deposit is the placing of something in the charge or custody of the bank of which specific thing restitution is to be made." (Morse on Banks and Banking, page 66.) The Treasurer did not place this $2,000 in the bank so that the same $2,000 should be again returned. He did not place it on a special but as a general deposit. The $2,000 was mingled with and became a part of the funds of the bank. This was a plain violation of the law. In my opinion it was not the intention of the legislature to change the general rule of law, that the Treasurer is liable absolutely for money received by virtue of his office, even if it be lost or stolen without his fault. (Cooley on Taxation, Sec. 501.)

I now approach a question upon which there can be little ground for legal controversy, but which has been rendered somewhat delicate by a most acrimonious discussion. Boyd's or Norton's bondsmen liable? It has been shown that Norton, as Treasurer, had no right to receive the certificates, either in satisfaction of his defalcation or in payment of taxes or as a deposit. He had not the power to make them the property of Washoe county, and in the absence of his authority he had no power to transmit them to Boyd as the property of Washoe county. From this it follows that Norton's bondsmen alone are liable. It may be that when Boyd received the effects of the Treasurers office from Norton he intended to receive these certificates as the property of the county. If so he had no authority to do so. It may be that [Boyd] is guilty of the most culpable negligence in failing to present the certificates for payment while the bank was solvent. If so, that is a matter between him and the person from whom he received them, not Washoe county. But it may be said that large amounts of money have been paid on these certificates, both to Norton and his successor. What amount therefore, are Norton's bondsmen liable for. Any money which was paid to Norton in his defalcation is simply a credit of the amount paid on his indebtedness to the county. When he went out of office there should have been $4,900 more in the Treasury than there was. His bondsmen are liable for that amount, less any sums which have been paid on his indebtedness since the expiration of his term. (People vs. Jacobs, 51, Cal., 540.) The true theory upon which Norton's bondsmen are liable, is to disregard the certificates of deposits entirely as something which the Treasurer never had the right to receive and hold as the property of the county, and hold them to account for the amount of money which should have been in the Treasury at the time Norton went out of office, subject, of course, to any amounts which have been paid since. Norton's bondsmen are liable, in my opinion, for the sum of $2,800. This opinion is very much longer than would have been necessary had I not desired to show your Honorable Board the reason and authority on which it is based. In conclusion, permit me to say that the Commissioners are invested with full power to control all suits to which the county is a party, and it now lies in your power to make an order directing suit to be brought against Norton's bondsmen. Respectfully submitted, GEO. A. RANKIN, Dist. Att'y
